ABOUT ANGELMAN SYNDROME & FAST

AS has been cured in a mouse model and stands to be the gateway cure for other neurological disorders such as Alzheimer's Disease, Autism, Fragile X and RETT Syndrome. Since 2011, FAST has funded over $3.6 million dollars in scientific research including the first ever human clinical trial of a treatment for AS. In 2013, FAST launched the most aggressive research initiative to date into a rare disorder, the FAST Integrative Research Initiative (FIRE), a coordinated consortium of 24 leading researchers from 4 universities working together to identify, characterize and implement new therapeutics for the treatment and ultimate cure of AS. With a focus on translational research and emerging biotechnologies, we believe a cure for AS is attainable within 5 years.

ABOUT THE EVENT

FAST is an all-volunteer, 501(c)(3) non-profit dedicated to funding research that will lead to treatments, and an ultimate cure, for the effects of Angelman Syndrome (AS), including developmental delays, lack of speech, difficulty walking and debilitating seizures.

The 2015 FAST Summit & Gala is two-day event featuring scientific research presentations, educational seminars, best practices presentations, scientific round tables, scientist/doctor/audience Q&A sessions and a celebrity-studded Gala fundraiser.

The 2015 FAST Gala is the ONLY A-LIST CELEBRITY event in Chicago. This exclusive event is attended by some of the biggest names in Hollywood as well as top executives in the Chicagoland area. Our celebrity attendees are personally invested in this cause; Actor Colin Farrell's son has Angelman Syndrome. Our celebrity guests are not paid for their attendance and cover their own costs related to attending the event.

As an event sponsor, you will receive extensive media coverage in all markets and access to a global audience. Attendees travel from more than 14 countries to attend the exclusive FAST Global Summit & Gala and the event is live-streamed to thousands of viewers across the globe. The 2015 FAST Summit & Gala is a very unique opportunity to market your company, advertise your product and showcase your corporate philanthropy and citizenship to the communities you serve.
